

The Safety Committee Coach!

How would you like to add The Safety Committee Coach to your staff in 2011? Safety Committees are major investments both in time and dollars. Most importantly however, safety committees can be one of the most effective tools for injury and incident prevention. The only problem, more times than not, our safety committees under perform, are slow to act and don't focus on the major hazards affecting our work group!

“Safety Committees want to help and do that right thing,” says Matt Forck, Safety Professional and The Safety Committee Coach. “Management wants to offer the right support in order to help committees be successful. What I have found is that coaching the committee through a few minor tweaks and focusing their efforts through a simple yet effective system can really help them turn the corner to long term success!”
